Profile Info.

I have several passions in life. I am fortunate that a few have led me down different paths over the past decade. From spending time working on design and development teams to running my own business and wearing many different hats. Both experiences have driven me to learn new things and push boundaries I wasn't aware I had. I have also been fortunate to have my hobbies expose me to working with people from all over the world. This helped me gain valuable leadership experience as well as an understanding of what it means to help others achieve their goals.

Matrix Games - Marine Corps University

During my tenure at Marine Corps University, I facilitated and designed complex in-person and digital wargames, supporting both junior and senior officers. I managed large-scale educational wargames, engaging with high-ranking military officials and educating over 200 students per event. Notably, I led a wargame focused on protecting Expeditionary Advanced Bases (EABs) with a mix of manned and unmanned Marine Littoral Regiment assets, involving research on future unmanned vehicles and drones, and simulation analysis. My instructional roles included teaching comprehensive coursework on Command PE Basics and Wargaming Electives. As an expert in a range of wargaming titles, I managed tournaments, created educational content, and conducted research on US and foreign military systems. I supported staff in developing digital wargames and assisted students in both in-person and virtual wargame participation. Additionally, I created instructional video content accessible in a cloud environment and played a key role in major defense events, contributing to scenario design, graphic creation, and event facilitation.

Studio JC LLC

I established my brand initially to support my work in architectural visualization and interior design. Over time, it evolved into a parent company overseeing multiple brands. Among these are Wild Weasel Apparel and Outer Marker Apparel, catering to military and aviation enthusiasts, and successfully operating as Shopify stores since 2018. Additionally, I manage Interior Serenity, a YouTube channel I created to showcase my interior design projects and experiment with various design software. Moreover, I co-founded GeoNex, a nonprofit dedicated to OSINT analysis, where I collaborate with a diverse team to conduct thorough investigations and provide valuable intelligence insights, further demonstrating my expertise in research and analysis.
